I'm an elemental shaman main (yeah, I know. Fuck me I guess) so I'm a bit biased, but I can say that both specs are very fun imo. Elemental has the advantage of being a ranged spec, meaning they are more desired in dungeons and raids. This doesn't mean enhancement is bad, of course, but melee specs are generally dominated by warrior, rogue and ...

I play Elemental Shaman on a semi-hardcore level on Draenor, primarily focusing on PvE content. Usually, you can find me lurking around the Earthshrine Discord as one of the Elemental MVPs, answering various questions, or hanging around Simulationcraft, where I maintain Elemental Shaman modules. I am also one of the active maintainers for Storm, Earth ...

Leatherworking is still a good profession, especially if you are your group's dedicated drummer, but otherwise Engineering is great for area-of-effect damage from its explosives, Enchanting gives you extra Spell Damage enchants on rings, and Jewelcrafting enables slightly better gems than default ones.. It is still worth it to use Elemental Shaman ...
