The battery agent evaluate its SoC(t) and if it is less than 30% of the battery's capacity, it starts charging the battery with full rate and continues in coming hours until the (SoCge 80%). Likewise, if (SoC ge 80%), battery starts discharging to meet ND (t) up to its full capacity until it reaches back to the 30% of capacity.

When evaluating battery performance, it's important to look at factors like capacity, voltage, and storage life. Capacity refers to the amount of energy the battery can store, while voltage refers to the amount of power the battery can deliver. Storage life refers to how long the battery can be stored before it starts to lose its charge.
